

Begging Eyes From Our Dogs

Thanksgiving & Christmas will be here soon. The aroma of fresh baked goods, delicious turkey, sweet potato pie and other sweets will be in the air. Dogs smell those yummy aromas too. Though you are tempted, don't give in to begging eyes by sharing your feast with your dogs!

Turkey bones should NEVER be fed to dogs, all poultry bones splinter easily. Splintered or whole, bones can lodge inside or perforate a dog's intestine. Foods high in fats like avocado, coconut/coconut oil, nuts, citrus, milk and other forms of dairy can upset your dog's stomach. Sweeteners, especially Xylitol, results in low blood sugar, causing liver failure. Salt can result in vomiting and create issues with electrolytes. Seizures can result from various food issues. Too much cooked turkey can cause pancreatitis. Pancreatitis is a serious inflammatory condition of the pancreas that causes vomiting and dehydration.

Show affection and love to your dog by giving him a treat filled Kong Toy or Buster Cube (they are great when frozen with peanut butter), or special toy. Keep him occupied while you are cooking and enjoying the holiday meal. He won't be tempting you with his begging eyes.

Arrange a canine only holiday celebration for your four legged kids at Ms C's Bed & Biscuits. Special holiday celebration activities are planned for guests, including homemade, wholesome, healthy doggy treats. Doggy sweet potato biscuits, and carrot muffins are on the menu Thanksgiving weekend. Homemade seafood dog biscuits and gravy are a staple for canine guests at Ms C's. Make your reservations today, at 865-986-6325 or MsCsBedandBiscuits.com.